

Orpha Phelan

Stage Director

“ Absolutely one of the most complete stagings I’ve ever seen in an opera”
Skansga Dagbladet

Orpha Phelan is an Irish opera director from County Kilkenny whose award-winning productions have been staged at leading opera houses across Europe.

She is a frequent collaborator with Irish National Opera, where her production of La Cenerentola was shortlisted for Best Production in the Irish Times Theatre Awards. There, she has also directed Don Pasquale, and La Bohème which she later brought to Opéra de Montpellier. At Wexford Festival Opera she directed a new production of Donizetti's Le Convenienze ed Inconvenienze Teatrali (2024) and Félicien David's Lalla-Roukh (2020), which received four Irish Times Theatre Award nominations including Best Opera and Best Director.

At Malmö Opera, Sweden, she directed La Bohème (film released by Naxos), Les Contes d'Hoffman, and Jenůfa (film released by Arthaus Musik) as well as a production of Fiddler on the Roof. For Opera North she has directed Billy Budd and a production of I Capuleti e i Montecchi which she later directed for Opera Australia at the Sydney Opera House. Other directing highlights include Fidelio for Longborough Festival Opera, Così Fan Tutte with Opera Theatre Company, and L'Orfeo at the Barbican.

She was awarded the Ring Awards Audience Prize for her concept of Le Nozze di Figaro with Oper Graz and Wagner Forum Graz. She received the European Opera Directors' Award for her concept of Hans Heiling for Strasbourg Opera in collaboration with Opera Europa.

Celebrated for her work in contemporary opera, she received a Place de l'Opéra prize for Best Opera for her production of Bernstein's A Quiet Place at Opera Zuid. For two years running she was the recipient of Denmark's prestigious Reumert Award for Best Opera Production for her productions of Thomas Ades' Powder Her Face and Jake Hoggie's Dead Man Walking (both with The Royal Danish Opera). She made her French debut at Opera National de Lorraine with Bernard Herrmann's Wuthering Heights. She also directed the world premiere of Raising Icarus by Michael Zev Gordon for the Barber Institute in Birmingham, and at the Barbican she staged the UK premiere of Jonathan Harvey's Wagner Dream.

Last season she directed a new production of Owen Wingrave at the Royal Northern College of Music. This season she directs The Cunning Little Vixen at the Royal College of Music and Norma at Irish National Opera, named as one of Opera Now's 'Must See new opera productions'. Further ahead she looks forward to her return to Malmö Opera for a new production.
